OVERVIEW

An exceptional five bedroom freehold period house occupying a highly desirable position on Pelham Street in the heart of South Kensington. Arranged across four floors and extending to approximately 2,400 sq. ft., this substantial family home combines impressive proportions, period character and outstanding potential within one of London's most prestigious residential neighbourhoods.

The house offers an excellent balance of reception, entertaining and bedroom accommodation, with generous ceiling heights and an abundance of natural light enhancing the sense of scale throughout. The versatile arrangement provides considerable flexibility for both family life and entertaining, while retaining the character and elegance expected of a traditional South Kensington residence.
